VILLARI

Company Profile

VILLARI Company Profile

History

The story of Villari began with a love story when Silvia and Cesare Villari, both working in a porcelain factory, got married in 1965. In 1967, their passion for porcelain and an entrepreneurial spirit led them to open their own porcelain factory in Solagna (70 km from Venice). At the beginning the company started with porcelain figurines inspired by Capodimonte. Villari became famous in the 70's for the its figurines and its decorative hand-made flowers applied to cups, vases and chandeliers. Nowadays the two daughters Alessandra and Barbara and the son Leone work for the company. The new generation has launched successfully many new collections: Grande Opera, Limited edition, Home fragrances and scented candles.

VILLARI is an iconic Italian luxury brand, a distinguished player in the field of interior design with a long-standing history and a trusted brand name. VILLARI continually reinvents porcelain! Combining expertise with creative audacity, VILLARI will pleasantly surprise you with an astonishing variety of stupendous sculptures; decorative items and sublime collectibles. The VILLARI lifestyle revels in elegance, taking it to excess with a touch of poetry and fantasy. VILLARI lifestyle expresses the ultimate in sparkling interiors: a true symbol of the Italian “art of living”.

Special Projects

Cesare and Silvia Villari have been commissioned in 1998 to realize a statue of the "Michael Jackson and Bubbles" by the artist Jeff Koons.

This Statue was a real challenge as the size is nearly the real size (106.7x179.1x83 cm.).

One of the pieces is in San Francisco Museum of Modern Art (CA).

The picture on the right hand page has been taken during an exhibition at Chateau de Versailles in Autumn 2008.

One of the four statues has been sold in 2001 by Sotheby's for 6.5 million dollars in 2001.

VILLARI

Cesare Villari left school aged 14 to work in a porcelain factory, where he became fascinated by design, moulding and creation. But it wasn't until the arrival of a similarly young, ambitious girl that he found the courage not only to make her his wife, but to break away and start his own firm. That was in 1967. Today, with a staff of over 50, Villari is the pre-eminent exponent of Italian porcelain, much of it Capodimonte reproductions, embellished with 18kt gold, platinum and crystallised Swarovski elements, while the couple's three children all play an active part. Cesare and Silvia still mould the models and prototypes, with Cesare signing all the finished works as a guarantee of authenticity.

"Our story began as a love story, when Silvia and I were both working in a porcelain factory and eventually got married in 1965. Now my daughters Alessandra and Barbara and my son Leone have joined the company. The new generation has launched successful new collections - I'm very proud of them. I tried to give them, as soon as possible, as many responsibilities as I could and I think this is key to our success. Trust, too, is a distinct competitive advantage. It gives us flexibility and enables our creative spirits to express themselves. We don't waste our time formulating ideas, we just realise them. My son Leone is head of production, and a great sculptor. My daughters Barbara and Alessandra are co-managing directors. And my son-in-law, Jean-Sébastien, is our commercial director. Fundamentally, though, we consider every person who works in our company, from the artists, to the sculptors, to those selling and marketing the products, as a member of the Villari family. That way we ensure all our creative passion and production values are shared throughout the workforce, and in turn these values are expressed in each and every item that is produced."
